News from schools across Canada about education for business leaders

The University of Toronto's Rotman School of Management has joined forces with the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario to establish a centre to enhance professional accounting education. The centre was officially launched Oct. 28.

In the first partnership of its kind, the centre brings together academics, accounting professionals, and ICAO representatives to improve accounting education and help prepare the next generation of business and financial leaders.
